Next Generation Technology Inc, announces majority ownership stake in American Business Partners International Inc. (ABPII)

Unification aims to leverage strategic partnerships and experience in the ERP market for small and midsize companies.

Arlington Heights, IL. October 13, 2008 – Next Generation Technology Inc, an emerging global company in Information Technology service solutions, this week announced its majority ownership stake in American Business Partners International Inc., a Cary, North Carolina information technology services firm.

The company plans to formally utilize ABPII as its satellite operation in the Southeast United States, adding to Next Generation Technology's existing base of U.S. operations in Chicago, New York and Southern California. The firm also has extensive off-shore operations in multiple locations in India.

Lalit Deo, CEO, Next Generation Technology said,

“This is a natural fit for us, and by combining these organizations we can better utilize our collective resources to effectively address customer needs, both geographically, and globally. We also are excited about utilizing ABPII's activity in the areas of marketing and business development to extend our presence with existing strategic alliance partners.”

Dagfinn Andresen, CEO, ABPII added,

“This has been a long time in the making. Next Generation Technology gives us the “engine” to deliver customer results while fully utilizing our own extensive marketing and business development activity....particularly in the Southeast U.S., where we are strongest. This enables us to expand our efforts with our partnership opportunities, to include other territories, without the distraction of building redundant delivery organizations.”
